this study examines israel s changing perception of iran and the underlying reasons for the current israeli tension anxiety verbal acrimony and fears in deconstructing israel s fears vis à vis iran the study looks at israel s failures to revisit its erstwhile peripheral diplomacy and to make adequate changes israel was unable to overcome the nostalgia of the past bonhomie and evolve a cohesive policy on iran moreover it was afraid of the cost of such a radical shift in its fundamental plank vis à vis iran the peripheral diplomacy with the result iran soon became a nightmare for israeli foreign policy and the security establishment the nuclear controversy is just a recent addition given the growing importance of israel and iran to india what are new delhi s options vis à vis the israel iran tensions recently democracy has been the watchword for a range of disparate yet apparently convergent contestations and negotiations within the global order democracy unrealized detailing the results of platform1 the first of four conferences held in conjunction with documenta 11 presents a context within which the interpretive and conceptual regimes surrounding democracy can be reargued against the claims of a neoliberal ideology from this globalist viewpoint democracy described as an unfinished project requires no structural changes for it is complete in all its foundational features requiring only small technical adjustments and minor tinkering this is how the main western democracies have seen themselves at best as incomplete implementations of equality and justice rather than as limited flawed dead ended and problematic in response to this presumption this book proceeds from the idea that realizing democracy is partly a matter of bringing to light what liberal democracy has promised but failed to deliver the emphasis here is on the potential for revision a reevaluation of values and the extension and creative transformation necessary to keep in step with 21st century globalizing processes this is democracy as an ever open essentially unfinishable project that in principle has fallen short of its ideals
